

Hurricane Harvey: One Week After Landfall

One week after Harvey blasted into southeast Texas as a Category 4 hurricane, some residents have returned to their homes to clean up while rescuers search for people trapped in flooded homes

Sept. 2, 2017 6:08 pm ET

Jenna Fountain carries a bucket down Regency Drive in Port Arthur, Texas, to recover items from her flooded home on Friday. Hurricane Harvey, which first made landfall last week, has had a devastating effect on communities along 250 miles of the Texas coast with its high winds and record rainfall. EMILY KASK/AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE/GETTY IMAGE

1 of 14

RELATED:

- Trump Returns to Gulf Coast After Hurricane Harvey's Devastation
-

SHOW CONVERSATION (6)